

Philippine Nuclear Medicine MD Forum

Nucmedph is a forum for the Philippine nuclear medicine physician community. This is the place to share your opinions, expertise, tips, and news about nuclear medicine and related fields.

Having doubts about a scan interpretation? Send it to the forum and see what others think. General comments about imaging, patient care, and nuclear medicine related activities are welcome. Post schedules and programmes of conferences that you are organizing (even if it's not on nuclear med). If you are having problems with acquisition or processing in your new gamma camera system, somebody in the group might have sorted out the kinks in their system already. All you have to do is ask. Let's try to rekindle the spirit of camaraderie and altruism that the early Internet was known for and apply it to the nuclear medicine community.

Any post that you think will interest people in the group (chisms and jokes included) is of course welcome. Post your favorite websites here, and we might include it in the permanent links section. If you think that everybody has to absolutely see your favorite Youtube.com video, by all means share it.

For now, this forum will be a closed group limited to local physicians only.